Conventional upholstery is based on a simple principle: foam is encased in fabric to provide comfort. The 25.1 bench eliminates foam from the equation and compensates by providing a vast excess of fabric, which is allowed to fold and pleat haphazardly to create a comfortable seat and back. The randomly folded pleats are allowed to shift as they conform to the human body to create interesting organic patterns over time.

MATERIALS

Mounded plywood, heavy dark grey pleated felt, stainless steel.
